WORD OF INTRODUCTION

Lexington Theological Seminary has for many years produced a widely respected scholarly publication. From 1909-1965 the journal was known as The College of the Bible Quarterly. When the seminary's board of trustees voted to change the school's name to Lexington Theological Seminary in 1965, it became necessary to rename the quarterly to reflect this change. The first volume of the Lexington Theological Quarterly emerged in 1966. This respected journal is indexed in Religion Index One, Old Testament Abstracts, New Testament Abstracts, Religious and Theological Abstracts, and Elenchus Bibliographicus Biblicus, but no cumulative index of the new quarterly has existed (although an index to the College of the Bible Quarterly to date exists for the years 1910-1956).

This index, created by Vita Coleman, and edited by Sharon Miller and LaVerne Barnett, provides a cumulative index for individuals and institutions holding a complete run of the Quarterly for the years 1966-1986. This should make the articles in the Quarterly more accessible for those seeking a particular article or subject and enhance the overall value of the publication.
